Child Safeguarding Resources – you will need to prepare a list of Child Safeguarding resources for your organisations project.

When developing Child Safeguarding Resources use the following as a guide on what to include.

This resource should be easily accessible, known to and understood by all staff and associates.

In countries where local criminal and child safeguarding laws exist, ASMOAF requires compliance with the local countries legislation by staff and associates. Australian Citizens are required to abide by both the local country law as well as Australian Law.

For criminal activity, such as sexual or physical abuse of children, local law enforcement and prosecution processes will be complied with in the country in which the offence was committed.

If Australian citizens are implicated immediately contact the Director of ASMOAF Australia for guidance.

Developing a local contact and referral list

1. Examine the existing process of reporting child abuse in the region and what services exist.
2. Identify local community and cultural child safeguarding strengths and include these networks and resources. For example, strong and extended family and community groups offer a range of people who can look out for children and respond to concerns.
3. Become familiar with the local countries laws in relation to child abuse and existing mandatory reporting requirements. These should then be included on the list.
4. Conduct an audit and document what services exist in the region to report child abuse and to support children and their families. For instance:
 - police (including any specialised unit such as sexual violence),
 - child protection authority,
 - local leaders,
 - counselling services,
 - women and children’s groups including domestic violence counselling and support services,
 - NGOs and local and international NGOs,
 - hospital, health professionals and primary health services,
 - schools,
 - legal services,
 - local government services,
 - youth groups and churches.
5. Make a contact list of Child Safeguarding Focal Point, Head Office contact, police, child protection authorities, relevant services and include phone numbers, address, email and contact person. Ensure the list is reviewed and updated annually.
6. Be aware of local cultural responses and expectations in regards to abuse of children.
7. Where appropriate Build and maintain collaborative working relationships with these organisations.
